

University of South Carolina AT Fellowship Information

Approved by USC AT Program Faculty

Purpose: An AT Fellowship is a one-year award for incoming admitted professional athletic training students who are non-South Carolina residents. The award is $750 ($250 per semester) and provides in-state tuition for the first year of the program. Admission into the program does not guarantee in-state tuition.

The award is not renewable; however, international students are eligible to be considered for an AT Fellowship for the second year of the program because they cannot obtain South Carolina residency. All other students must review the South Carolina residency policy with the University Registrar. The program does not guarantee in-state tuition for the second year, and U.S. residents who do not qualify for in-state tuition are not eligible for an AT Fellowship in the second year. If you are unsure about your current South Carolina residency status, please review the information below.

https://www.sc.edu/about/offices_and_divisions/registrar/residency_and_citizenship/residency/residency_requirements/index.php

Eligibility: All applicants must have an application verified through ATCAS, complete an interview with the USC AT Admissions Committee (comprised of faculty, staff, and Ph.D. students), and be offered unconditional admission into the AT program. The AT Program has a limited number of fellowships, and the number of awards may vary yearly based on budget considerations.

Consideration: Eligible non-resident admitted students are considered automatically for an AT Fellowship. No additional materials are required for consideration.

Questions: Direct questions about AT Fellowships to Dr. Mensch at (803) 777-3846. Please visit the graduate school website for information on fellowships, awards, grants, and other funding opportunities.